

Recorders

How to play the notes B, A, G on the recorder:

FINGER CHART

● = CLOSED HOLE ○ = OPEN HOLE

B A G

A recorder is a member of the woodwind family along with the:

- flute
- piccolo
- clarinet
- cor anglais
- bassoon
- saxophone

How to remember the notes of the treble clef

For notes on the lines use 'Every Good Boy Deserves Football' (EGBDF)

For notes in the spaces use FACE

When we blow the recorder we use 'feather breath'.

Feather breath is a steady, gentle breath that creates an even, smooth sound.

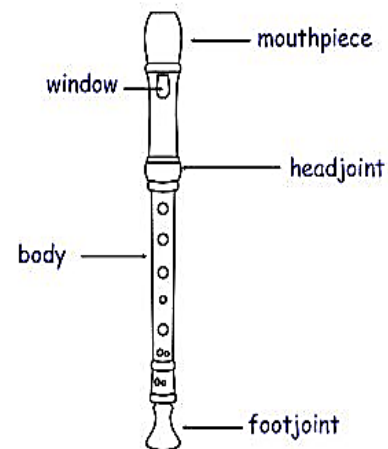

How to draw a treble clef

A treble clef is a symbol used at the start of a piece of music for a high-pitched instrument such as a recorder, a violin or the right hand of the piano.

Trace these shapes to make a treble clef:

Parts of a recorder

C

D

E

F

G

A

B

C'

What is a staff?

A staff is made from 5 lines and is a bit like a musical ladder.

We can put musical notes on a staff to make music that is high, low or somewhere in-between.

